A ROUND OF TALK.

The Gladness of Spring

When spring, with blossom haunted lanes
With sudden gusts of rippling rains
Came dancing down the glad young year,
How soon my heart forgot its fear!

And when I heard the lyric note
That floated from the robin's throat,
How soon the sad song in my breast
Sought a deep silence, a deed rest.

Now who had dreamed an April rain
Could cleanse a heart of all its pain?
And who had thought one little bird
Could hush a soul's discordant word?
—Charles Hanson Town in the May Woman's Home Companion.

REED.—The many friends of Will am O. Reed will be interested to learn that he has been given another promotion in the army. He has been appointed First Lieutenant in the Tenth U. S. Cavalry. Since leaving here about two months ago Lieutenant Reed has been on duty at Columbus Barracks with the Third Cavalry. The Tenth to which Lieut. Reed now goes is the celebrated regiment of colored soldiers that distinguished itself during the Spanish-American war and it is said saved the day at the famous charge at San Juan hill. It is considered the crack regiment of the army. It is officered by the best officers of the army but all of the privates are colored men who make fine soldiers. The regiment is now stationed in Texas and has recently returned from service in Cuba.

PRICES AND CROPS.—Although the coming season gives promise of yielding a large crop it is not likely that there will be any over production in agriculture this year. There is such a scarcity of everything produced on the farm that if every acre planted should produce double the average yield it would not be too much. We need more corn, wheat, oats, cattle, sheep and hogs. The high prices prevailing for all live stock and farm products will naturally stimulate farmers to greater efforts and the acreage of corn and other grain will be large which if coupled with a favorable season will undoubtedly result in one of the biggest crops for years. The short crops last year and the heavy demand however will undoubtedly prevent any danger of an over production.

CHANGED — Conditions are slightly reversed as regards the down-trodden farmer just now it seems, and it is the consumer or non-producer to whom the kick appears to be due. High prices for meat - one of the staples of life is one instance where the poor man who don't raise any beeves gets the worst of the conditions. The price of meat of all kinds in the cities—and the country too for that matter—has gone up so high that hundreds of poor people have become vegetarians through necessity. Some say that it is the result of the manipulations of the beef trust that is responsible for the high prices but a more logical conclusion is that high prices for cattle and hogs are caused by high priced corn and greater demand for export.

FORTUNATE FARMER.—By the way speaking of high prices another instance of where the farmer is "it" this year can be found in the horse and mule market. The usual spring activity in horse and mule buying is much more active this season than usual and better prices are prevailing all around. While the prices for horses and mules are higher in sympathy with other things to some extent at the same time it is undoubtedly the fact that the war in South Africa has been a direct cause of the increased demand and consequent high prices for these four footed beasts of burden. Thousands of horses and mules have been exported from this country during the past year by the British government for use in the war against the Boers and it is said that such is the extreme rough service to which these animals are put that few survive longer than a few weeks, when another supply is brought on.

DOG TAX — It is a popular beleif that a man will fight for his dog and many are the stories told and written about, "man's best friend" and his devotion to his master and his master's devotion to him. The latter proposition is soon to be given a practical test in Springfield. The Board of Trustees has passed an ordinance imposing a license of one dollar per year on all dogs claiming Springfield as their home and after the ordinance goes into effect any dogs found within the town limits without a license tag will be sentenced to banishment or death unless redeemed by its master. So in this way the dog owner will be given an opportunity to show to just what limit his love for his dog will go. There are no doubt some good dogs and appreciative masters in the town to whom the tax will not make any difference but the chances are that, if the law is enforced that there will be many new faces in dog heaven.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word but when you think how liable you are not to purchase for 75 cents the only remedy universally and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remidies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs Bronchitis, Croup and especially for Consumption where there is difficult expectoration and cough ing during the nights and morning, there is nothing like Germen Syrup. Sold by all druggists in the civilized world.

The Thrustof A Lance

is scarcely more agonizing than the recurrent pains in the abdomen which follow the eating of improper food or too free an indulgence in ice water. The immediate cause of cramps and colic is often the distention of the bowels by gas. Quick relief follows the use of Perry Davis' Painkiller. Careful housekeeper, give it the place of honor in the family medicine chest.

Cyclists should always carry a bottle of Ballards Snow Linement in case of accidents, if applied immediately it will subdue the pain, prevent swelling and discoloration and heal the wounds quickly. Price 25 and 50 cents at Haydon and Robertson's drug store.

New Enterprises.

The Manufacturers' Record for April reports the following new enterprises in its Kentucky column; Contracts will be let for the quilding of a $15,000 court house at Paris. A new jail and jail residence will be built at Versailles. The railroad from Jackson to Frozen will be finished this summer. The Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky Railway Co will survey a line into this State The Lincon County, Oil Gas and Mineral Co has been organized at Sanford The Banner Oil Co at Monticello The Jefferson Brick Co and the Clark county Oil and Development Co at Louisville The Penn Lubmer Co. at Georgetown. The Knox County Oil and Gas Co. at Frankfort, and a water works company at Corydon.

Foley's Honey and Tar for children, safe, sure. No opiates.

Kentucky In the Cabinet

The reports from Washington assigning John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky to a Cabinet position are coming with a force closely akin to certainty and concerning a gentleman than whom none could be more worthily honored. Mr. Yerkes is now serving as Commissioner of Internal Revenue, a position second in importance to none in the economy of the government and the rare executive capacity and judicial mind he has shown in the conduct of the affairs of the office have commended the wisdom of his appointment to the fullest. One of the most scholarly of Kentuckians, he is one of the most practical, a political fighter he has always been, but a political fighter on the high plane of principle, avoiding and bending all his efforts for the advancement of Republicanism. His canvass for the Governorship of Kentucky showed the stuff of which John Yerkes is made, and Kentucky would take to herself the honor which would be conferred by the President in summoning Mr. Yerkes to his Cabinet.

Years have passed since Kentucky had a representative in the Cabinet but she is none the less deserving of it, and it is the merest justice to say that the glory of Kentucky in her sons who have been in former Cabinets would be in no whit dimmed by the summoning of John W. Yerkes by President Roosevelt. He is honest, he is competant he is a Republican —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Holds up a Congressman

"At the end of the campaign, writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension loss of sleep and constant speaking, I had about collapsed." New Religious Doctrine.

Mrs M. Dixon of Hardin county is holding a protracted meeting at Braxton and endeavoring to found a new religious sect in Mercer. She claims to represent the primitave, or Protestant Methodist church the doctrine unadorned as preached by John Wesley. The new religious order has no bishops or deacons, and is only under the guidance of a president who appoints those whom he wishes to assist him. She claims that they follow to the letter along the lines laid down by Wesley, and that the Methodist Episcopal church is a branch which sprang from them. The sect is gaining a hold in Southern and Eastern Kentucky and in Tennessee and other Southern States and is becoming quite numerous. Mrs. Dixon has been holding revivals in many counties of the State and is gaining quite a reputation in her order as a exhorter. She passed through here last Saturday enroute to her new field of labor at Braxton, opening the series of meetings there Sunday morning. So far she has only met with moderate success although she preaches to crowded houses every night.—Harrodsburg Herald.

He Kept A-Swimmin'

The other day in New York a man named Bo le hird an experience that it is better to read about than go through. He was working at a manhof when the ladder gave way. He fell into a sewer, and was carried for more than a mile under-ground in a torrent of water that ran like a mill race, in absolute darkdess and deluged with mud and slime and all manner of filth He was dashed against brick walls, well nigh overwhelmed with dirt that was emptied over him from side sewers, and finally he was pitched into the East River and was fished out by a bargeman. Boyle's own account of the matter is interesting and the chief fact is that he never gave up. "I kept a swimmin,'" was his succinct way of outing it, and even when he found himself in the middle of the East River half unconscious, he "kept a-swimmin,'". One must confess a good deal of admiration for a man, who under such circumstances, is about as hopeless a condition as a human being could possibly find himself, should still keep in the game.—May Woman's Home Companion.

Narrow Escape

Mr. Charles Robinson was having a line fence built between him and Robert Nave and sent some dynamite down to his farm to be used for blowing out holes. Mr Scoop Armstrong was doing the work and had placed two sticks of dynamite on a stump. Mr. Nave came along and took a seat about 20 feet from the stump and while waiting for Armstrong fell asleep. Mr. Robinson came along with his rifle and thinking he would play a joke on Nave and frighten him a little drew a bead on the dynamite and a terrific explosion followed, which left a hole in the ground large enough for a grave for both himself and Nave. Nave fortunately was not injured but frightened half to death and so was Charlie. Scoop's exclamations when he arrived were a little too expressive to be placed in print.—Harrodsburg Democrat

Presbytery Adjourned.

Trahsylvania Presbytery convened in the First Presbyterian church of this Tuesday night and concluded its work and adjourned yesterday afternoon. Only routine business was transacted Wednesday. Dr. J. V. Logan was elected Moderator and Dr. E. M. Green permanent clerk, but Rev. S. M. Logan, of Middlesborough, acted in that capacity. Dr. Harvey Glass, of Somerset, and Elder N. Thompson, of Springfield, were appointed commissioners to the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church, which convenes in Jackson, Miss., in May. Dr. J. G. Hunter, of Harrodsburg, and Judge James Denton, of Somerset, were the alternates. Dr. J. M. Saunders and Dr. J. V. Logan were appointed a committee to present the congratulations of the Prestery to Dr. E. M. Green and the congregation of the First Presbyterian church at the celebration of Dr. Green's twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor the second of May. The next meeting of the Presbytery will be at Silver Creek, in Madison county, next September. There were about thirty delegates here and the meeting one. The committee on the Presbyterian Female College was retained, but nothing of importance was done in this matter. A vote of thanks was tendered the people of Danville for the entertainment afforded and the many courtesies shown.—Danville Advocate.

Like a drowning Man

"Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia took such a hold of me that I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. March, well known attorney of Nocona Texas, "it took quantities of pepsin and other medicine but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvment at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodol is the only preparation which exactly produces the natural digestive juices and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble, Haydon and Robertson.

Our Foreign Horse Trade

Reports from abroad show that American horse flesh is rapidly growing in demand in foreign markets. During the past six years Great Britian alone spent $35,000,000 in the United States in the purchase of horses. independant of the $6,000,000,000 which she spent for mules. Last year not less than 75,000 horses horses were shipped from this country to England Until 1865 the exportation of horses was not an important item in our foreign commerce, but since then it has grown into something enormous and Great Britian is only one of the many foreign countries whose recognition of the superiority of American horse flesh is substantially attestably large purchases. During the past six years our shipments of horse to other countries have been as follows: South Africa, 37,465; Great Britian, 22,698; Canada 8,438; Cuba, 4,436; China, 2,317; Philippines, 1,578; Japan, 1,595; British Columbia, 759; British West Indies 199 and others scattering. Germany, France, Russia, and Austria are likewise included among the number of foreign purchasers of American horse flesh, but they have just commenced to make purchases and have only invested up to now in trotters. They have been charmed with the graceful movements as well as the rapid speed of our American horses and the small purchases which they have so far made may prove the entering wedge to larger ones.—Ex.

Excuses

Teachers who require written excuses for tardiness from the parents of pupils sometimes receive very amusing notes. Here are a few specimens; "Dear sir please excuse James for laieness I kneaded him after breakfast," A second note reads, "Please forgive Billy for being tardy. I was mending his coat." The third excuse goes more into details but is none less interesting. "Mister sir my Jasen had to late this morning. It is his business to milk our cow. She kicked Jase in the back to-day when he was'nt looking or thinking of her actin'; so that his back was broke but it ain't. But it is black and blue and the pane kept him late We would git rid of that old cow if we could. This is the fourt time she kicked Jase but she never kicked him late before. So excuse him for me."—Ex.

Silent for 40 Years.

At the home of Messrs Lu and Gora Bonta, on the Lexington pike, is an old colored woman who is a living example of the terrible effects of slavery She has never spoken since her husband was put upon the block and auctioned off to Southern slave owners over forty years ago. When he was torn from her side she vowed never to speak until he was restored to her, and though many years have passed and the custom of selling human beings like so many cattle has been abolished, she still keeps her vow. "Aunt Susan," as she is called, is now between sixty and seventy years of age. She is a rather large mulatto and not uncomely. After the close of the civil war her strange silence cut her off from association with her kind, for they regarded her with superstitious terror, and even the white people looked on her with suspicion, When the slaves were freed but few people would employ her and she finally drifted into the alms house and there she remained until about eighteen years ago when the father of the Bonta brothers had charge of the poor farm. The pathos of her story and her willingness to do whatever task was put before her worked upon the sympathies of the family and when they moved from the place they took her with them. She has remained with some member of the family ever since and her devotion to the friends who befriended her is doglike and pathetic. She appears of a kindly disposition generally, only now and then, when angered growing sullen and morose. Strangers, she shuns, especially white ones, seeming not to trust them and never voluntarily going near them. The family and neighbors have tried in every way to trick her into speech but have failed, although she has not lost the power of speech as she is frequently overheard talking to herself. She never leaves the farm, seeming to have no interest in outside things but she appears perfectly sane, except for her vow of silence and in case of sickness, when she shuts herself up, taking no medicine and allowing no one to come near her. It is almost as if she courted death, longing for the time when she will be reunited to her husband who was sold so many years ago and who has never been heard of since, some saying he died in Mississippi of swamp fever. Aunt Susan is an indefatigible worker, doing the family washing and ironing to perfection, and whatever she comes to hand. But her peculiar vow has made her an object of curiousity and this she seems to feel most keenly, keeping to herself as much as possible. The other negroes, even her fellow workers have nothing to do with her, and thus she lives, a grim lonely, silent woman, broken hearted by that terrible custom that almost wrecked our nation—Harrodsburg Herlad.

Narrow Escape.

Mrs. "Gusta" Cecil, of near Balltown, together with her baby had a narrow escape from drowning last Saturday afternoon. While attempting to cross Beech Fork the horse she was riding stepped on a rock and slipped, throwing her headlong into the water. Fortunately the river was very low and her husband, who was with her proceeding in getting her out before she reached the deep water. She and her child both went under several times, but aside from a thorough drenching they suffered no serious injury. Mrs. Cecil is a daughter of Mr. W. W. "Green" well, of near town, and she was on her way to visit him when the accident occurred.—Nelson Record.

You Can Lead a Horse to water but you can't make him drink.

You can't make him eat either. You can stuff food into a thin man's stomach but that doesn't make him use it.

Scott's Emulsion can make him use it. How? By making him hungry, of course. Scott's Emulsion makes a thin body hungry all over. Thought a thin body was naturally hungry didn't you? Well it isn't. A thin body is asleep—not working—gone on a strike. It doesn't try to use it's food.

Scott's Emulsion wakes it up—puts it to work again making new flesh. That's the way to get fat.

PULLIAM

The measles have subsided in this end of the county.

Miss Belle Romanie of Peoria, Ill., is visiting relatives here.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Terell, a boy, to Mrs. Samuel Hale a girl,

Mr. John Conway who was burning brush failed to control the fire which, being driven by a high wind burned about 200 panels of fence for Walter Terell and had it not been for the fire brigade the Methodist church would have been destroyed by the conflagation.

The old adage, "An ill wind blows nobody good" struck your correspondent the 22nd, after purchasing some hogs from J. B Mitchell and while taking them home they died on the way. I then ran my buggy from under the shed and while getting my horse the wind blew the buggy down a steep bank, completely tearing off the top. Mr. Editor, what could have been worse than this and all the same day?

On Sunday last a strange phenomenon alarmed our citizens. It seemed to have taken place in the sky and made a report similar to a monstrous explosion of dynamite followed by sounds as if made by a trumpet. This peculiar action of the elements greatly startled many people near Pulliam and Tatham Springs Many people believe it was an earthquake, others believe it was a falling meteor, while others insist from the effects it produced on the physiognomy that Gabriel must have tooted his trumpet.

A Revelation

If you will make inquiry it will be a revelation to you how many succumb to kidney or bladder trouble in one form or another. If the patient is not beyond medicinal aid Foley's Kidney Cure will cure. It never disappoints. Sold by Wood-Robertson Drug Co.

The Turnip.

The seed of the globe turnip is about the twentieth part of an inch in diameter, and yet in the course of a few months this seed will be enlarged by the soil and the air into 27,000,000 times its original bulk, and this in addition to a bunch of leaves. It has been found by experiment that a turnip seed will under fair conditions increase its own weight fifteen times in a minute. Turnips growing in peat ground have been found to increase more than 15,000 times the weight of their seeds in a day.

There is a Difference.

City Editor—Why do you say, "He ran into the police station puffing and blowing?" "Puffing" and "blowing" are synonymous.

Reporter—Not at all. There's a vast difference, for instance, between puffing a man up and blowing him up.—Catholic Standard and Times.

"THE SCOTCH RESULT."

Seeing the Point of the Joke in a Plain Story.

William Inglis was a visitor at a Scotch yacht club on the Clyde during a regatta week, and one night he was called on for a story. Knowing, he says, from books and experience the density of Scotchmen to American jokes, he told the broadest, most pointed story he could think of. It was the old chestnut of the inebriated Irishman who met a policeman and asked him the time.

"Three o'clock," said the policeman.

"Oi didn't hear," said the Irishman.

"Three o'clock!" the cop yelled.

"Shure, Oi didn't hear that, either."

The cop then hit him three whacks on the head with his club. "Did you hear that?" he asked.

"Shure," said Pat, "Oi heard that, and Oi do be fur thinkin' it's glad Oi am that Oi didn't mate ye at twilve."

There was not a ripple of appreciation on the rows of Scotch faces before him, said Mr. Inglis. They, one and all, were blank, and slowly each Scotchman drained his whisky to hide the fact.

"Suddenly," said Mr. Inglis, "I saw an old Scotchman in the far corner break into a smile. Slowly he removed his pipe from his mouth and blew out a cloud of smoke. 'Hoot, mon,' he said, 'but ye canna blame the policemon, for a' that. It do be a wee bit hard to be asked the same question three times.'

"That is what I call the Scotch result," Mr. Inglis concluded.—New York Tribune.

Where Dinners Cost Five Cents.

A large proportion of the population of Naples live at public kitchens or cooking stands, which are found on every block in the densely settled portions of the town. They are generally dingy little rooms, the walls blackened with the grease and smoke of generations. In the rear is an old fashioned fireplace with a number of pots and kettles, from which savory steam arises. The largest is always for macaroni, for that is the staff of life. The others contain soup and various kinds of fish and vegetables, while on the counter, which usually projects into the street, the cooked food is spread out in large pans and bowls. The customers come along with pans and buckets, look over the stock and make their selection.

The prices are remarkably low. Fish, vegetables, fruit and macaroni, the chief articles of Neapolitan diet, are cheaper here, it is said, than in any other place in the world, and at one of these cooking shops a good dinner can be obtained for 2 cents and enough for a family for 5 cents.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Velocity of Meteorites.

The singular fact has been demonstrated that while the most rapid velocity of cannon balls scarcely ever attains a speed of 600 meters a second—about 1,500 miles per hour—meteorites are known to permeate the air with a velocity of 40,000 or even 60,000 meters per second. This unthinkable speed instantly raises the temperature of the air to 4,000 or 6,000 degrees centigrade.

That Apple.

A correspondent sends us a little story of his infant son. His mother was telling Tommy about the apple and the garden of Eden, when the child, who resided in the country and had a lively recollection of windfalls, remarked, "But, mummy, it would not have mattered so much, would it, if she had picked one off the ground?"—London Life.

Great Industrial Discoveries.

It is not the boy who is surrounded by the best implements and tools that ingenuity can manufacture, but an Eli Whitney making a cotton gin in a cellar in the south with the simplest tools or a Cunard whittling the model of a ship with a jackknife that makes great industrial discoveries.—Success.

An Intense Adaptation.

"Thinner" represented an Indian brave at the masked ball.

"Oh, was that it? I have been laboring under the impression that he went as a feather duster."—Washington Times.

Luck.

I am a firm believer in luck. Why, some people are so unlucky that were they to travel backward they would stub their toe.—San Francisco Bulletin.

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS
This is written in mid-October. The long oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading leaf, withering tree and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow,—they are coming. You remember last winter; of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough grip it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cribs and cradles. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Benson's Porous Plaster. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaints

THAT ARE KILLING THE PEOPLE.
No other plaster, no other medicine or application, can compare with them. Coughs, colds, backache, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney and liver troubles, asthma, intercostal,—they all go down before Benson's Plasters like a snow image in the sun. You can't throw money away on a Benson's Plaster. Everybody is going to use them this season. But make certain you get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

A special from Lebanon says Mr. S, P. Deringer and Miss Lulie O'Neal of Washington county eloped from their home yesterday afternoon and drove to this city, where they were married by the Rev. A. C. Graves at the Norris House City Tax Collector Johnson and Mr. W. C. McChord Jr were the only witnesses.

Mr Deringer is a well known young farmer of the Valley Hill neighborhood and the bride is the daughter of Mr. R M O'Neal and is quite popular.

Squire Berry Hatchett a member of the county board of Magistrates from the North and Willisburg district was before the County Judge last week on a writ of lunacy Squire Hatchett had been suffering with mental disturbance for several days and after a trial before a jury he was declared of unsound mind and ordered sent to the insane asylum Mr Hatchett is about 60 years old a veteran of the union army and was a highly respected citizen having served several terms as county magistrate. Greatest sympathy is felt for the old gentleman and his family in his affliction.

We received an anonimous communication this week from Polin in which the writer proceeds to "jump on to" one of his neighbors with both feet, for an action on the part of the neighbor which it appears did not meet with the approval of the writer. We make it a rule never to publish an anonimous communication, particularly one of this character, so if the writer of this one is afraid to sign his name and stand the consequences the airing of his opinion of his neighbors will have to be indefinately postponed. It has often been a source of regret to the editor of this paper that he was not born bullet-proof and big enough to do the fighting for all of those "cautious" readers of the NEWS-LEADER who want to use him, but we have battles of our own and we beg to be excused from taking on any outside engagements for the present at least.

Two dead game sports from Simms who were in town last Saturday came to greif as a result of acting too smart, in a way that will probably teach them a lesson. There names are William Gluption and Charles Yankey. They had been to town and started home pretty well filled up on liquor and before they got out of town one of them began shooting his revolver from the buggy in which they were They drove on rapidly out the Perryville pike. In the meantime Marshall Grace and Constable Albert Kimball procured a vehicle and proceeded to follow The men were traced to the little village of Simms where the officers walked in upon them in a large tobacco barn with a crowd of companions. Gluption and Yankey were singled out and brought to town where they confessed, the former paying a fine of $50 with the trimmings and the latter $10.

Court Day Sales

There was about an average court day crowd in town on Monday and the offerings of stock on the market were somewhat greater than usual, there being nearly 250 head of cattle on the market. Buyers were scarce however and only a few cattle changed hands. The following sales were reported by auctioneer S. M. Campbell: 8 yearling steers; at $20.55 per head, 9 same at $26; 10 same at $26.55; one bull for $30; 6 steer calves at $16.75; 8 same at $20; one cow and calf $35; one cow for $20; 13 two-year old steers at $28; one plug horse for $11.75; one cow for $20.75; one steer $32.75; one plug horse for $20.65. Col. R. E. Whayne reports the following: 13 calves at $19.75; one cow for $35; 9 sheep at $3.55 per head, one mare for $70.50

T J. Hord Dead.

Mr. Thomas J. Hord died at his home this place at 5 o'clock on last Monday afternoon after an illness of several weeks of pneumonia and stomach tronble. He had been in declining health for several months but his condition was not considered serious until he was taken down with pneumonia about two weeks ago from which he never rallied The deceased was 54 years of age and had been a resident of this county for about twenty years, continuously except for a short interval when he and his family lived at Somerset. For a number of years Mr. Hord was a farmer in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood and was quite a successful man in business affairs He and his wife have been conducting the Hord Hotel in Springfield for the past three or four years Besides his wife two sons, Dr Huber H. and John Hord survive

The funeral services were held at the Christian church yesterday morning and the burial took place at Pleasant Grove

Died

Miss Piety Smith eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Smith and one of the most popular young ladies of the town died on last Sunday morning at the home of Mr. John Y. Mayes after an illness of only one week with meningitis She was enjoying her usual good health up until the day she was taken down Her illness was of a desperate character from the beginning and although all that medical skill and tender nursing could do was done nothing could stay the hand of Providence that had called her from friends and loved ones in this world to that higher life beyond the grave The deceased was about 22 years of age and had been a valued employee in the store of Grundy, Claybrooke & McIntire. She was a general favorite with all and by her lovely disposition and genuine worth made many warm friends who sincerely mourn with her greif-stricken parents and near relatives over the taking away of this brigntyoung life for whom the world might have held many pleasures. The funeral took place on Monday morning from St. Dominic church of which the deceased was a devout member.

TROUBLES OF J. BULL

MUCH EXERCISED OVER THE WAR OFFICE SCANDALS.

Diversion of War Funds to Pockets of Contractors Has Roused His Ire. Kitchener's Poor Horses—Why Do Wet Got Away.

England is beset with a peck of troubles these days, at home as well as abroad. The Boers have fulfilled to the letter their promise that the price of their liberty would stagger humanity, and the end seems yet afar off. Now come rumors that much money intended for the suppression of the South African republics has found its way into the pockets of army contractors, and, to cap the climax, it is hinted that conscription may be found necessary to keep the army up to the required standard.

The true Briton will stand a good deal for the glory of his country and the acquisition of territory, but the limit seems to have been nearly reached in the tight little isle. Recent disclosures in parliament showing apparent incompetence and dishonesty in the purchasing departments of the army have caused a public agitation that augurs ill for the war office.

Hon. W. St. John Brodrick, secretary of state for war, in introducing the army estimates, $345,500,000, to the house of commons, entered into a defense of the war office, contending that the work has been done well, considering that 70,000 men and 245,000 horses are being fed in South Africa.

Judging from recent and promised disclosures, however, scarcely any of the supplies for the army in South Africa were secured on business principles. Specializing contractors are now known to have made hundreds of thousands of dollars by reselling contracts.

It is openly stated in England that the contract for meat for the army was first resold at $50,000 premium and then at $200,000, while Cecil Rhodes and the De Beers group handed over $1,000,000 and thus finally secured the privilege of supplying the troops in South Africa with meat.

The horse purchasing scandal is another raw spot on John Bull's epidermis and has had a very disquieting effect on the public mind. During the Crimean war there were similar scandals, but that affair is such ancient history that it is altogether forgotten or was never known to the present generation. So that the exposures of the horse purchasing scandals have come as a genuine shock to the moralists who have been fond of holding up the British virtues for other nations to copy.

Recently it has come to light through the medium of a French horse dealer, that frauds before which those of the Crimean times pale have been perpetrated. This individual stated to a newspaper correspondent that he was making a fortune out of the English by selling them the most wretched crocks of horses, only fit for the bone-yard, at prices that were simply astounding. The officers who bought the horses knew very well that they were doctored. All they wanted was to ship over as many heads as was possible in a given number of days, and no one can maintain that they did not succeed in this questionable purpose. The war could probably have been concluded by this time if Lord Kitchener had been provided with fit and proper horses. The secret of De Wet's mobility is at last out, and the inability of the British commanders to catch him is explained, because their horses were not equal to the task.

While these criticisms of the war office are being publicly aired there is proceeding beneath the surface a result that threatens to be of even greater importance. Leading officers in the volunteers, many of them noblemen, are working against Mr. Brodrick's new volunteer regulations. Mr. Brodrick wants a conscription. Should his idea prevail the volunteers would cease to be an effective force and furnish the war office with a strong argument for compulsory military service.

These are some of the disagreeable outgrowths of the South African war which John Bull must now face.

NATIONAL NEWS

Verily, these are the days of great projects! Some years ago a man wrote a pamphlet advocating the construction of a great railway to connect North and South America, and only succeeded in getting himself called a visionary crank. This week the President transmitted to Congress a report from the Secretary of State concerning the action of the Pan American Congress, recently held in Mexico City on the question of a Pan American railroad, and endorsing the recommendation of the Congress that the United States appoint a commission to investigate and report on the feasibility of the construction of the railroad in the following words: "I recommend an appropriation by Congress of the sum of $200,000, or as much thereof as may be necessary to enable the Commissioners to visit Central and South America to carry the purpose of the resolution into effect, and to investigate and report on the means of extending the commerce of the United States with those regions" The resolution adopted by the Pan-American Congress, a copy of which went with the President's message to Congress, endorses the Pan-American Railroad and places its length at 5,456 miles and its cost at $184,290,271 which is away beyond the highest estimate of the cost of the Isthiam Canal.

Capt Clark of battleship Oregon fame has declined to serve as the Naval member of the special American embassy to the coronation of King Edward, and Rear Admiral Watson has been appointed in his place. It is semi officially given out that Capt Clark's reason for declineing was that he did not feel able to spend the money that would be necessary, as the members of the embassynary to pay heir own expenses, but there is reason for the suspicion that the principa reason was Capt. Clark's unwillingness to be a part of the royal show Republican Senators will prepare a new Cuban reciprocity bill as a substitute for the House bill, passed last week, and will make it a party measure.

No one in Washington was surprised when the President directed the acting Secretary of war to order Gen. Fred Funston to stop talking. It had been expected, and his criticism of Senator Hoar by name make it certain that it would come.

Senators were so well satisfied with the way the "pork" was distributed by that $70,000,000 River and Harbor bill that it was passed without a word or debate and without a dissenting vote. Ex-Senator Carter of Montana who talked the last River and Aarbor bill to death, must have smiled when he read the news.

Senator Hawley, chairman of the committee on Military Affairs has introduced a bill for the purpose of defining the legal status and authority of the lieutenant general of the army, which he admits to be in the interest of Gen. Miles, who has many warm friends in the Senate

Senator Scott may not have been diplomatic when he interrupted Senator Rewline, who was speaking against the Philli pine bill to ask, "Does the Senator think that any Senator on the floor will be influenced by any argument that may be made on this question," but he bluntly stated the truth. Senators are never influenced by argument when bills endorsed by their party are under consideration. The arguments are not made with any such expectance but for their effect upon the people who are sometimes influenced.

Claims filed with the Department of State on account of the Boxer uprising in China number 150 and aggregate $2,000,000. Most of them were made by missionaries. The Department of State has created a commission composed of Minister Conger, Secretary of Legation Rainbridge and Consul Ragsdale, at Tientsin, for the pupose of investigating every claim that has been filed and ascertaining as near as possible the exact money value sustained by each individual who has filed a claim. As fast as the claims are adjudicated they will be paid from the first instalment of the Chinese indemnity, which will be due in June

It is among the probabilities that a Tariff Commission, to sit during the summer and report to Congress next December, will be authorized at this session of Congress. The advocates of such a commission claim that the appointment of such a commission would have a tendency to take the tariff out of politics, but the democrats claim that it would be merely a play in the game of politics. There is not the slightest doubt that a large majority of both branches of Congress believe that a revision of the tariff would be beneficial to the country at large, but the difficulty comes in when the attempt is made to say what schedules of the tariff ought to be revised, It is the old, old story. Cut the other fellow's profits, but don't cut mine.

FAD BECAME A MANIA.

Tempted by Harvard Book Plates, a Doctor Turned Thief.

It would seem from the experience of the Harvard college library that book plate collecting may sometimes develop into a cloying, and expensive manin. A few years ago the Harvard library found that the engraved labels which it pastes on the inside of the covers of its books as marks of its ownership were disappearing from some of the less used volumes. The older book plates, it appears, are high ly prized by collectors and some of them are particularly valuable for their artistic merit as well as for interesting associations with early book collecting in this country. These were naturally the special prey of the thief.

Detectives took the matter in hand and the offender was discovered with full evidence of his guilt upon him. He confessed to stealing the library's property and to having it in his possession. By the time the matter reached the courts the prompt return of the book places had been restored, the thief having settled satisfactorily with the persons to whom he had sold or given them, and as the prisoner had repaid the expense to which the library had been put, the college consented to leave the matter of sentence with the court, which imposed a fine of $100 or one count and put the other count on file, to be brought up again later if it should be desirable, meanwhile placing the offender under $500 bonds for his future appearance if he should be wanted.

A striking point in the case is that the culprit was in no way a common criminal. His education has been a degree of doctor and his taste seem only to have made his thefts more intelligent and discriminating. He knew the value of his peculiar booty, and he knew how to dispose of it, his very personality being a protection to him in that part of its transaction. Apparently the fad developed to a mania and that to kleptomania in his mind.

A number of the stolen plates have not yet been traced at all, and collectors have been warned against receiving Harvard plates of the older engraved varieties unless there is undoubtable evidence that they came honestly into the possession of the person who offers them.

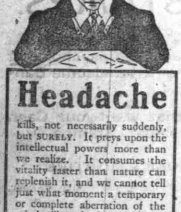

Riley and the Scotchman.

Eugene Field was fond of relating the following story of a conversation of Riley: "To beguile the tediousness of the return voyage from Europe it was proposed to give a concert in the saloon of the ship, an entertainment to which all capable of amusing their fellow passengers should contribute. Mr. Riley was asked to recite some of his original poems, and of course he cheerfully agreed to do so. Among the number present at this midocean entertainment, over which the Rev. Myron Reed presided, were two Scotchmen, very worthy gentlemen, en route from the land of cakes to the land of biscuits upon a tour of investigation. These twain shared the enthusiasm with which the auditors applauded Mr. Riley's charming recitations. They marveled that so versatile a genius could have lived in a land reputed for uncouthness and savagery.

"'If it no wonderful, Donald,' remarked one of these Scots, 'that a tradesman sud be sic a bonnie poet?'

"'And is he indeed a tradesman?' asked the one.

"'Indeed he is,' answered the other. "'Did ye no hear the dominie intryjuce him as the hoosier poet? Just think of it, man—just think of sic a gude poet dividing his time making hoosiery?'"

UNCLE SAM'S MONEY

THE SAFEGUARDS THAT HEDGE ABOUT ITS MANUFACTURE.

Care With Which Even the Shavings of the Peculiar Paper Used Are Handled—Counting and Recounting the Treasured Sheets.

Uncle Sam's paper money has its birth in the bureau of engraving and printing in Washington. Here a corps of engravers cut the lines into plates of steel. Five hundred men and women are in one room. It is the largest printing office in the world. Here are stored from these plates the notes which we give the printers and the bakers. Each steel plate when not in actual use is stored away in a great burglar proof vault to which only the highest officials know the combination. At the side of each printing press is a little indicator like a bicycle cyclometer, which keeps tally of every piece of paper money printed. This is Uncle Sam kept informed as to the exact number of paper notes of all denominations which leave his presses daily.

If there is any secret which Uncle Sam jealously guards it is the process of manufacturing the fiber paper upon which his many notes are printed. He pays a Massachusetts firm a good price for it, and this firm does its work under the surveillance of a government agent. The paper is manufactured of the finest rags, cleaned, boiled and mashed into pulp. As it is rolled into thin sheets silk threads are introduced into it by a secret process. These are the distinguishing mark making imitation of the paper well nigh impossible.

The sheets of paper, already counted twice and placed in separate packages at the paper mill, are counted in the bureau vault and issued to the bureau of engraving and printing as wanted. It first leaving the mill they are recounted three times more, and the receiving official at the bureau must recount. Then the sheets are moistened, and the printing begins. Each sheet is counted three times by a separate person. This is to insure that each sheet gets the recorded number of impressions, no less. A large and valuable division in which the paper is stored before he leave each night he must exhibit to a watchman at the door as a certificate that every piece of paper he slept passing through his fingers has been accounted for.

If one sheet of this precious paper is lost, the entire force of men and women having access to the room where the misplacement has occurred are kept in, like a merry school children, to find it. Each sheet is looked from the vault for the printing of a definite amount of money upon it. If the last sheet were intended to ultimately represent $1000 worth of notes, the printing of employees to unlock the responsibility of its misplacement has been traced and some one cause for the amount if they cannot locate it within a reasonable time.

Twenty-four times more are the sheets counted when the printing is completed after leaving the presses. Then they are sealed in packages of 1000, placed on racks in a drying room of 120 degrees temperature, and again thoroughly examined, classified in powerful hydraulic press and packed in packages. These packages are handed to the treasury department, where they are again carefully counted, and then they are ready for issue.

Ferris Seaton had meant only to lightly crack the shell, but when he grasped the napkin to mop the sticky yellow from his vest he realized the fierce energy with which he had struck the unoffending egg.

His sister looked across the table in surprise. "What's the matter, Ferry?" she asked. "Is the darkie wrong, or is Audrey? It is Audrey," she finished for him as she noticed the quick contraction of the bushy brows. "What is it?"

He tossed the morning paper across the table.

"At the head of the third column," he said briefly as he continued the cleaning process.

The article was a lurid scare head announcing the forthcoming marriage of Audrey Wiley, daughter of the multimillionaire Thomas Wiley, to the Baron von Zinghen of the German embassy at Washington. At a dinner and ball that evening the formal announcement of the engagement would be made.

In the early seventies, when Tom Wiley and Dave Seaton worked adjoining claims in the Sierras, they had been fast friends. Seaton had sold his claim to Wiley, who struck it rich ten months afterward.

When Wiley came east a multimillionaire, Seaton was a prosperous merchant, and the old friendship was renewed. Ferris and Ethel were invited to play with Audrey, and the companionship of the fathers was repeated in the second generation.

Then Ferris went to college, only to be recalled during his senior year by the failure and subsequent death of his father. The friendship between the two families lapsed temporarily until Ferris had placed the wrecked business on its old basis. Audrey, just from the finishing school, was a beautiful girl. Between her and Ferris it was love at first sight, but Wiley pere had other plans for his daughter.

"I like you, my boy," he admitted to Ferris, "but, Audrey is not for you. I've spent thousands on that girl, and she's going to marry more money or marry blood."

Ferris replied sharply. Mr. Wiley forbade him the house and imported his English cousin a sister to act as Audrey's duenna.

This had happened six months ago. Ferris' letters had been returned by her father, and meetings were impossible. And now came the announcement of her engagement!

"I never thought Audrey would be so mean," declared Ethel hotly as she threw down the paper.

"She's not to blame," declared Ferris, calmly consuming what remained of the egg and its follow. "I have all faith in her. It's that father of hers."

Ethel passed around the table and seized her brother by the shoulder.

"Ferris Seaton," she declared, with energy, "you are the most aggravating person I know of! Why don't you do something?"

"I'm going to, if you don't shake out all my ideas," retorted the young man.

"Then," she declared, "I will leave you in peace."

Ferris smiled as the dining room door slammed, and he finished his breakfast with some appetite. Then he started down town at a brisk walk. The air was sharp and bracing, and the half formed idea took shape in his brain. He turned his steps to the poorer quarter of the town, and a twenty minute walk brought him to an establishment, half saloon, half cafe, over the door of which was a small sign reading, "Headquarters of the Bakers and Confectioners' Union."

The place was crowded with clean shaven men, each carrying a small parcel which Seaton knew contained a dress suit. They were waiters not regularly employed, but hoping for odd jobs with caterers. Here the head waiters for the big catering establishments selected their staffs for balls and dinners.

The Planec had announced that Monico would serve at the Wiley dinner and ball, and Seaton went straight to the proprietor.

"Miss Feira come in?" he demanded, naming the well known maitre of the Monico establishment.

The proprietor jerked his thumb over his shoulder to where a stout blond German sat at a table. Fritz rose as Seaton approached. His memory for faces was good, and he recognized the young merchant instantly.

"Want a job, Mr. Seaton?" he inquired joccsely.

"That's it exactly."

"Where's your card? You don't belong to the union." Fritz was willing to carry out the joke.

"Not here," said Ferris, "I'll give $100 to the union and another $100 to you if you hire me at Wiley's tonight."

Fritz blinked a moment. Then he put out his hand. All the world loves a lover, and he knew what Seaton wanted. A bill passed between them.

"Better hire a dress suit. Your own will fit too well," suggested Fritz after the details had been concluded. "And be at the back door of Monico's at 6:30. I'll take you up myself."

When the chosen few who had been bidden to both dinner and ball gathered about the board that evening, none recognized in the smooth shaven waiter Ferris Seaton. Even Audrey did not know him until a waiter handed her a menu card on the back of which was written in a familiar hand:

Meet me in the conservatory as soon as you can after dinner. I am here as a waiter.

F. S.

Little Von Zinghen, sitting by her side, wondered at the flush that suddenly spread over her face and neck, but complacently credited it to maiden modesty and the impending announcement. Von Zinghen had his bine blood and his vast estates, but the possession of all Germany could not have made a man of him. Audrey contrasted, with loathing, the puppet at her side with the clean cut specimen of American manhood who, even in an ill fitting dress coat, showed his physical perfection and whose keen features bore the impress of intellect.

An hour later they were in the conservatory, where as children they once played among the palms, pretending they were castaways on a tropical island.

"Ferris," she said as he clasped her hands, "what ever persuaded you to run this risk?"

"You," he responded tenderly. "I couldn't lose you without one last effort. I want to know if you love me enough to go with me now—at once! I have a good income, and I am at least a man."

The dearest man in all the world!" she whispered softly.

"Then come," he urged. "I have a cab at the corner and a warm wrap for you. The gardener's door, dear, and no one will see us."

So hand in hand they went out into the night.

The next morning the papers rang with the sensation, and Thomas Wiley over his coffee was in a frame of mind utterly indescribable. The one touch needed to complete his fury yas supplied when the butler brought in Seaton's card.

It took Wiley four minutes by the clock to calm down to the point where he could control his voice sufficiently to tell Jorkins, the placid English butler, to kick Seaton off the step. By that time he had decided to execute the order in person.

Seaton was not on the front steps, but in the reception room and in the most comfortable chair. He arose as the elder man approached.

"I thought," he announced affably, "that I would run in and tell you that Audrey was all right."

"All right! She's disgraced!"

Ferris caught Wiley's arm in a grasp that made him wince. "Be careful!" he warned. "You are speaking of my wife. We were married last night by Dr. Stetson, your own pastor."

"Her name's in all the papers!" sputtered Wiley.

"So it was yesterday," retorted Seaton, "but then it was linked with that of Von Zinghen, a man whose past life is notorious. You put it in then. You are responsible for its appearance this morning. You thought you wanted blood instead of brains. I knew better and corrected your error. You will thank me some day. Better thank me now."

He held out his hand frankly, and Wiley grasped it.

"Hang me if I don't! You were right!"

Curiosities of Superstition.

When Egypt was in the height of her power, when she was most highly civilized and delighted in being called the "mistress of the land and sea," her people worshiped a black bull. There was some discrimination, however, even in this form of worship. In order to be an object of mad adoration it was necessary that the bull calf be born with a white spot in the exact center of his forehead, and the advent of such a creature in any herd was the signal of wild demonstrations from the Mediterranean to the border of the Lybian desert. Even as late as the time of Cleopatra, "star eyed goddess, glorious sorceress of the Nile," such animals were held sacred and had their horns tipped with the same metal. Herodotus tells of a man who died with grief because he sold a cow that soon after became the mother of a black bull calf marked with the sacred white circle in his forehead.

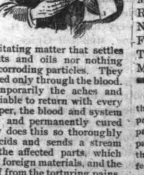

His Own Mother Didn't Know Him.

The following anecdote is told by a young Englishman, who says: "I was coming home from India on leave of absence. The ship did not arrive for some days after it was due. My twin brother Ben had come up to receive me, and our aged mother was very nervous.

"One morning, after she had undergone several disappointments because of the ship's delay, I rushed into her room, saying, 'Oh, mother, how are you?' Her answer was: 'No, Benjamin, it's a bad joke. You know how anxious I am for Alfred.' It was some time before I could convince my mother that I was her son Alfred, who had been away so long, and not my twin brother Ben, playing a joke on her."

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and flannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acrid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils nor nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.

S. S. S. contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.
